Archives Information Sheet 1- Jewish Genealogy

1. Genealogical material at the University of Southampton

The Archives and Manuscripts at the University of Southampton holds only a limited amount of genealogical material. The three main collections of Jewish genealogy, those of Sir Thomas Colyer Fergusson, Ronald D'Arcy Hart and A.M.Hyamson, which were formerly part of Anglo-Jewish Archives are now lodged with the Society of Genealogists in London.

Information on the collections held at Southampton can be found in C.M.Woolgar and K.Robson A guide to the archive and manuscript collections of the Hartley Library (University of Southampton Library, Occasional Paper 11; 1992) and C.M.Woolgar and K.Robson A guide to the archive and manuscript collections of the Hartley Library, University of Southampton, MSS 201-300 (University of Southampton Library, Archive Lists, Catalogues and Guides Series 7; 2000). An electronic version of the guides is available at: www.southampton.ac.uk/archives

K.Robson 'Southampton University's Jewish archives as a genealogical resource' in Shemot (Mar 1998) pp. 20-4 gives an introduction to material of use for research into family history.

2. General notes on tracing your Jewish ancestors

It is important to note that as many Jewish families - especially those from Eastern Europe - did not have surnames when they arrived in Great Britain changes of name occurred. If these changes were conducted by deed poll and the deed polls enrolled then they can be found in records at The National Archives. For deed polls which were not enrolled, there may be material in the national or local press. The London Gazette has published all enrolled deed polls since 1914.

From 1837 onwards there was civil registration of births, marriages and deaths. These can be found at the Family Records Centre. Prior to this date records may exist with the synagogues. Addresses for the synagogues can be found in the Jewish Yearbook. The Family Division of the Beth Din, the Court of the Chief Rabbi, holds records of defunct congregations and registers of closed burial grounds and is prepared to undertake commissioned genealogical searches of its material. The Board of Deputies is the legal place of deposit for duplicate marriage registers from synagogues; these records are retained by the Board although it has deposited other of its records at the London Metropolitan Archives. The London Metropolitan Archives also holds records for the United Synagogue and the Federation of Synagogues. The London Sephardic community maintains its own records and enquiries for assistance should be addressed to the Honorary Genealogist at the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue. Details of Jewish burial grounds, if in existence, can be found in the Jewish Yearbook. Obituaries in the Jewish Chronicle, which commenced publication in 1841, are another source of information. Wills proved after 1858 were registered with the Principal Probate Registry (Principal Registry of the Family Division). For the period 1796-1858, the Death Duty Registers are the best means of locating a will.

For details of individuals living in Great Britain, the census is a useful source. The earliest census returns of genealogical use date from 1841 onwards. These give details of name, age, sex, marital status, place of birth and occupation of everyone in a house and from 1851 onwards their relationship to to head of the household. The 1841 census does state whether a person was born in the county in which he was living in 1841, nor his place of birth.

For individuals who have migrated to Great Britain, records of naturalisations and denization can be found in The National Archives (classes HO1-HO3, HO5). The Aliens Department papers (HO213) has nationalisation and nationality files, 1920-61, as well as collective passports of children brought to Great Britain as part of the Kindertransport. For immigrants arriving in Great Britain from places outside Europe by sea between 1878 and 1960, there are passenger lists (BT 26). There are also passenger lists, arranged by year under the names of ports of departure, of those emigrating from Great Britain (BT27). Further papers of assistance might be: general classes of Home Office papers (HO45-HO46) and Immigration and Nationality Department papers (HO334).

Some material of Jewish genealogical interest can be found amount the index of births, marriages and deaths compiled by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. A microfiche of this can be found at the Society of Genealogists. The Colyer-Fergusson collection which includes family pedigrees, lists of newspaper notices, and abstracts of wills, and the Hyamson collection of notes on Jewish families are also at the Society of Genealogists.

WWW resources:

There are innumerable resources available on the web. The following are of particular assistance:

www.avotaynu.com

This gives access to (i) the Avotaynu Consolidated Jewish Surname Index which provides a gateway to thousands of Jewish surnames which appear in a range of databases; (ii) the Family Tree of the Jewish people, a database of family trees submitted by Jewish genealogists; and (iii) JewishGen which supports a variety of genealogical resources including the JewishGen Family Finder a computer index compilation of surnames and towns being researched by genealogists worldwide, together with details of genealogical societies, immigration records for the United States of America, passenger lists for America and Hamburg.
